Women 'Leggers' Face Prosecution In Federal Court

Fourteen Indicated By Grand Jury Sitting At Texarkana.

"CHIVALRY" IS DEAD

Agents Say No Favors To Be Shown On Account of Sex.

TEXARKANA, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Fourteen women, seven of them white, arrested in a series of raids in this section last July, were indicted by the federal grand jury today.

The arrests resulted from a campaign inaugurated against women boot-leggers by prohibition agents who said, asserting the majority of liquor law violations were by women. More than a dozen men were also indicted some of them in connection with the women boot-leggers.

The white women indicted, either for possession or sale, were: Mrs. Ida Hatter, Mrs. Eunice Smith, Bernice Little, Mrs. Elvira Parsons, Marie Youngblood and Mrs. Ruby Farris. All were arrested in Texarkana and suburban.

In inaugurating the campaign, prohibition agents said "gentle chivalry" was dead so far as enforcement of the prohibition law was concerned.

B. & P. W. Club Meeting Is Postponed For Week

The regular meeting of Hope Business and Professional Women's Club, scheduled for Tuesday night, November 12, has been postponed one week, it is announced today, because of the fact that that date has been designated as the annual banquet date for the Chamber of Commerce.

This action was taken by the Club in view of the fact that the Chamber has always been in hearty accord with them, rendering every assistance possible, and as a means of showing appreciation of the Chamber's efforts toward developing the natural and initial resources of southwest Arkansas a matter in which the B. & P. W. Club is as intensely interested as the Chamber of Commerce.

The Club's regular meeting will be held Tuesday evening, November 26, with Miss Emma Green and Genie McManis in charge of the program.

Morris, bishop of the Little Rock diocese of the Roman Catholic church, announced upon his return today from a journey to Rome the promotion of several priests and prelates and the naming of Chas. J. DeWett is the second Arkansas layman in the history of the church in this state to receive this signal honor, in this instance conferred by Pope Pius XI.

Lime Is Endorsed for Truck Crops

Lowthorp Enthusiastic Over County Meetings Next Week.

"If the men on my farm will haul the lime out and spread it I'll buy it for them. That is what I think about the value of lime," C. S. Lowthorp, 57, said today when discussing the plan of County Agent Lynn Smith to bring a truckload of lime into this county some time this month.

"The continuous use of heavy applications of fertilizer necessary for the production of truck crops may have a tendency to bring about an acid reaction in the soil," Mr. Lowthorp said. "But this is easily corrected by the application of ground lime."

Lime and chalking are very important practices in producing the return from our soils. But I do not personally believe that lime is desirable under watermelon because they do not thrive on the natural lime soils. All other crops seem to like lime."

Special meetings will be held next week to solicit orders for the truck load of lime. One or four truckloads have already been obtained, according to the county agent. The meetings will be held as follows:

Hope City Hall, at 2 p. m. Monday, November 18.

McCaskill, at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday, November 19.

Blevins, at 7 p. m. Tuesday, November 19.

Cotton Ginnings Show Increase

To November 1, 1929, cotton ginnings in Hempstead county totaled 21,174, as against 15,137 for the corresponding date in 1928.

Business Club Is Urged for Hope

Roscoe Evans Addresses Kiwanians—Officers Nominated.

"Hope needs a business men's club to improve co-operation on community matters," Roscoe Evans, manager of J. C. Penney & Co., told the Kiwanian club at its luncheon today in the Capital hotel.

Reviving the cordial relations between Rotary and Kiwanis, Mr. Evans went on to say that there is still a very large body of local business not reached by either of these clubs. "I think personally that every store in Hope should have closed on Armistice day," he said, "and we ought to have a place where the merchants can gather and discuss matters like this."

"The co-operation of business interests here in the city is not much better, sometimes, than the kind of co-operation the farmers give each other. I remember a case last spring when seven Hempstead county farmers brought fresh blackberries to town only to find that the market was glutted with berries. They gathered at their favorite corner and discussed the matter. It was agreed that all of them would go home and not return again until Friday, a week later, when the market would certainly be cleared for new stock."

"One of our friends went home, and thinking about the matter decided the market would probably be cleared as early as Wednesday, and he could slip in ahead of his friends and sell all his berries first. He came to town—and on the very first corner he found the other six farmers!"

The nominating committee of the club announced the following slate of officers for 1930:

President, Roy Allen; vice-president, Dewey Hendrix; secretary, Park Fisher; district trustee, Frank May; directors, W. S. Atkins, Rufe Harnden, W. H. Lindsey, J. M. Harbin, Jack Frazier, Perry Moses and Clup Weltman.

Mr. Evans announced that the finance committee of the Watermelon Festival, of which he is treasurer, had received a $100 rebate from the Frisco railroad, remitting in full the truckage charge levied against the Miller Shows, which played here under the auspices of the Festival. When the matter was explained to the Frisco by Mr. Evans and Roy Anderson, president of the Chamber of Commerce, the refund was made at once.

He went to Tulsa, was fortunate in early oil investments, and now is engaged in building and leasing office structures for such nationally known concerns as Item Biscuit company, General Electric, and Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

In a letter to George W. Robinson, a boyhood friend of his, Mr. Allen writes the following:

Mob Perils Accused Child Killer

"Lynch her! . . . We'll show her how to treat babies!"

How angry mobs of women swirled about Gladys Parks Baker as the former night club hostess led police to the spot in National Park, N. J., where she buried the body of 2-year-old Timothy Rogers, whom she is accused of killing, is pictured above. At the top you see her pointing out the improvised grave to Prosecutor V. Baldwin, right, and below she is shown surrounded by the threatening mob which fought detectives in an effort to lynch her. Inset is a close-up of Mrs. Baker, who authorities say killed Timothy and his 4-year-old sister, Dorothy, after using them to blackmail wealthy men.

Mammoth Springs Pure-Breds Cost Swept By Flames $187.75 Apiece

Lack of Adequate Water Supply Causes Fire Loss of $75,000.

MAMMOTH SPRINGS, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The Citizens Bank, Pace Mercantile Company and two smaller business houses were destroyed by fire late last night, the estimated loss being $75,000.

The cause of the fire was not determined. Heroic work on the part of volunteer fire fighters prevented greater loss. They were, however, seriously handicapped in their effort by an inadequate water supply.

Des Moines Is Leader In Junior Club Move

DES MOINES, Nov. 12.—(AP)—With a total membership of 600, Des Moines has the largest federation of Junior clubs in the world, the organization numbering 40 clubs, seven having been added in the last year.

After the war, senior club women organized these groups into Junior clubs, which are now affiliated with the Iowa Federation of Women's clubs.

Clarence Dennen asked the senate to investigate the action.

War Secretary In Serious Condition Physicians Say

Critical Period Following Operation Entered Today.

SPENT GOOD NIGHT

Rise of Temperature Gives Cause for Concern To Friends.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Secretary Good, dangerously ill in Walter Reed hospital, was thought today by his physicians to be entering the critical period following his operation for appendicitis and the next 48 hours would determine whether he would survive.

Army surgeons attending the war secretary noted with some apprehension that his temperature had risen during the night. This, however, was not considered particularly alarming as a heightened temperature might result as a natural defensive measure on the part of the body as a reaction to the operation.

Secretary Good spent a fair night and his condition at 10 o'clock this morning, according to his physicians, was as had been expected.

Waggoner Not Sent To Atlanta Prison

Colorado Banker Gets Short Stay of Execution Is Report.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Neither Charles Deles Waggoner, Telluride, Colo., banker, or George Graham Rice, stock promoter and financial journal publisher, was among the 5 prisoners who were taken from the federal house of detention yesterday in a special car bound for Atlanta penitentiary.

Both Waggoner and Rice face sentences on mail fraud charges, the banker a minimum term of five years for defrauding six New York banks of $300,000 and "the king of speculators" four years for fraudulent stock sales.

The deputy United States marshal in charge of the prisoners said he understood that both Waggoner and Rice had obtained stays of execution of their sentences.

Charles H. Tuttle, United States attorney, was not in his office and none of his assistants could explain why Waggoner had not been taken to prison as scheduled. There has been no official announcement of his counsel having made an appeal.

Doubt was expressed by his physicians as to whether he would be able to go to Baton Rouge tomorrow for a meeting of the State Board of Liquidation when five million dollars in road bonds are to be offered for sale.

Writer Called in Capital Rum Quiz

"How Wet Is Washington?" was the title of a magazine article written by Walter W. Liggett, newspaper man and author, and that's just what a District of Columbia Grand Jury wanted to know. So Liggett was summoned and is pictured above after he had testified where he got information for his survey of the liquor situation in the capital. He was expected to be recalled.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The records there showed that the utmost care was taken to make sure that the body chosen to represent the young Americans who lost their lives never could be identified, even through such a remote possibility as the process of elimination.

In preparing to make the selection, the army authorities exhumed four unidentified Americans, one each from the Meuse Argonne, St. Mihiel, Somme and Alsne-Marne cemeteries.

The uniforms and equipment and the places where they had been buried originally established the fact that they were Americans and their wounds showed the cause of death. No body was taken which bore any clue which might lead to its identification.

All were prepared for burial, placed in identical caskets and brought together at Chalons-sur-Marne, October 23, 1921. The next day, in an improvised chapel in the city hall, Sgt. Edward Younger, chosen from a detachment of American soldiers to select the body of the unknown soldier, paused before the four caskets and placed a small spray of white roses on one. That casket then was placed in one specially prepared to receive it, and the body thus began its long journey homeward to symbolize forever the heroic sacrifices of those who died unknown.

Tolerance Asked By Religious Body

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 14.—(AP)—More than 400 Catholics, Jews and Protestants, including priests, rabbis, Protestant ministers and leading laymen of all three beliefs today adopted unanimously a declaration denouncing intolerance, upholding mutual respect, and declaring that differences in religion should not interfere with active co-operation in all community undertakings.

The declaration was adopted at the close of the second and final day of a Protestant-Catholic-Jew seminar conducted at Harvard University under auspices of the Calvert Round Table of Boston and aiming toward the elimination of religious intolerance and misunderstanding.

The party had met at the airport and were driving back to the city when the accident occurred.

Former Prosecutor Believes Smith Confession Not Based On Facts.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Declaring the alleged deathbed statement of Lewis Smith of Bellaire, Ohio, assuming responsibility for the San Francisco preparedness day bombing in 1916, could not be based on fact, Charles M. Fickert, Los Angeles attorney, said today the confession either was a "hallucination" of a sick man or was "fabricated after his death for the purpose of aiding the Mooney agitation."

Fickert was district attorney of San Francisco county during the trial of Thomas J. Mooney in 1916. Mooney is serving a life term in San Quentin prison for the bombing.

Planes In for Big Air Circus Friday

Fleet Will Arrive Early In Forenoon, Though First In Tonight.

Kenyon circus, staging Hope's first big air circus, will be at the landing field early Friday morning, according to W. Homer Figg, secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce today. The pathfinder or scout plane will be in tonight to inspect the field Friday morning and advise pilots, through signals, of the field's condition.

Numbers of people from over Hope trade territory have expressed intention of being present to see—and perhaps take a spin in—two air crafts the like of which haven't visited this city before, the largest commercial plane afloat—a Ford tri-motor—and the smallest machine that wings its way through the air, a monoplane.

There will be stunt flying, wing walking, parachute leaps and everything else going to make up a day of thrills and sensations.

Mellon Says Tax Cut "Merely Coincidence"

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Secretary Mellon said today that his announcement that the treasury would ask a cut of $160,000,000 in income taxes, coming at a time when the stock exchange is in a lull, was merely a coincidence, being decided on more than a week ago.

The college was already a member of the North Central Association.

Mrs. Cooley recommended immediate action by the W. C. T. U. to strengthen the organization, declaring "it could take a lesson from the enemy," as she described the Association Against the 18th Amendment. Formation of county units to replace the district groups was one of the means mentioned.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Mrs. Emma Hogarth is strangled to death in her room on the second floor of Mrs. Rhodes' boarding house, where she was confined because of heart trouble. Reputed miser, she had her will frequently changed to name a new favorite among the boarders.

Bonnie Dundee, young detective, assists his chief, Lieut. Strawn, in the investigation. Strawn immediately suspects a former boarder, Emil Sevier, who, he learns, left town that night on the one o'clock train. A doctor next door reports having seen a man running down the alley about 12:30.

"Turn up—turn up—a bad penny always turns up."

Dundee, stationed behind a screen, takes notes as Strawn quizzes the boarders. Henry Dowd, newcomer, out of work, insists he was in his room all evening and heard nothing but the snoring of Capt. Mrs. Hogarth's parrot, Cone Barker, theater pianist, is next given a merciless third degree. She tells of her date with another boarder, Bert Magnus, amateur scenario writer, of how he failed to appear and her return to the house to hear him typing at 12:30. She explains her bandaged hand by saying it is an electric iron burn. When Strawn demands to know why Mrs. Hogarth cut her out of her will she evades answering. She admits that Sevier made love to her but denies any knowledge of his part in the crime.

Mr. and Mrs. Sharp are brought in next. Mrs. Sharp is dressed to catch a train, saying she is going to her boy who is in trouble in a nearby college town. They tell of seeing Walter Styles and his fiancée Norma Paige go to Mrs. Hogarth's door, of Mrs. Hogarth's anger with Styles, and later of Norma's suspicious disappearance from the second floor bath. Norma is brought in. She admits she was the latest heiress and that Mrs. Hogarth was angry at her because of her engagement to Styles. She admits also she went to Styles' room later to tell him of the interview. Styles corroborates Norma's story, but admits he parted his room after Norma's departure. When asked if he was angry at Mrs. Hogarth, he says, "Yes, I was." Magnus insists he typed all evening until 12:35. Word is received that Sevier disappeared off the train. A detective comes in with a real clue—a green parrot's father is found in the lining of Dusty Rhodes' tweed cap. Mrs. Rhodes recalls having seen it last in the hall chest, where Sevier was searching for his rubbers. The parrot startles the group by yelling "Bad Penny!"

Daisy Sherbert, absent from her room at time of murder, explains her absence by saying she was in the kitchen robbing the ice box.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVIII

"Will Daisy is a daisy all right," Strawn commented wearily after the big girl had gone and Payne had reported her room innocent of concealed treasure. "How did she strike you, Dundee?"

"Right on the funny bone," Bonnie Dundee chuckled. "I gather that she was telling the truth about the ice box?"

"Went down and had a look at it myself," Strawn admitted. "That part was the truth all right, though there is no proof that she pilfered the ice box when she said she did. Mrs. Rhodes wasn't in the kitchen herself after 11, when she went to get a drink before going to bed. I asked her when I was checking the contents of the ice box."

"So you think maybe Daisy fortified herself with a little lunch of raspberries, ham sandwich and banana before robbing and murdering her old friend?" Dundee grinned.

"Oh, shut up! You know what I think! Sevier's our baby!"

"Bad penny!" Dundee reminded him softly. "A bad penny always turns up." Do you think chief, that Mrs. Hogarth, hating Sevier and fearing him as she did, would greet him with a merry little quip like that? In my opinion, humble though it is, the poor old lady would have yelled for help, instead of quoting proverbs.

"Oh, you and your blasted parrot!" Strawn retorted with weary anger. "I guess you'll tip off the defense to put the bird on the witness stand, in Sevier's favor?"

"That wouldn't be a bad idea—if Sevier ever came to trial," Dundee answered softly.

"Oh, he'll come to trial all right—when we catch him!" Strawn promised. "We've got enough now to go to the grand jury with. I'd bet a month's salary that between them, Dr. Weeks and the driver of that car that turned down the alley will identify Sevier. That places him near the scene of the crime immediately after it was committed. Coupled with that, he beats it out of town and disappears off the train without showing a ticket, when he'd said he was going to Chicago. Those two facts, together with the fact that Mrs. Hogarth saw him in her room one night and warned the police that he was planning to rob her, will bring him to trial all right."

"Bad penny!" Dundee repeated, very softly, and "Bad penny!" the parrot echoed sleepily.

"For God's sake, shut up!" Strawn pleaded. "I'll be as loony as you are if I don't get some sleep."

Who the devil could she have been talking to?" he added unwillingly.

"That," Dundee answered seriously, "is what I'm going to try to find out, if you'll let me keep this diary of hers until morning."

"All right! Have a good time," Strawn conceded sarcastically. "I've got one more job here before I can turn in. The boys are still holding those roughneck pals of Dusty's down stairs. I want them to give him an ironclad alibi—I never heard so many howled all his life before! Even Mrs. Rhodes has one—answering her long distance at two minutes after 12, at the very moment when the murderer must have been twisting the scarf around the old lady's throat."

"Henry Dowd hasn't an alibi," Dundee reminded him. "He had lived here only one week, had never met Mrs. Hogarth face to face."

"So you think he's the bad penny that 'turned up,' do you?" Strawn interrupted. "Well, good luck to you, Sherlock. This plodding old dick will try to find time to visit you in the bungalow—after Emil Sevier gets fitted with his last necktie!"

"Wait a minute, chief. What about those samples of food that the old lady saved to have analyzed for poison?" Dundee halted Strawn as the lieutenant was leaving the room.

"Oh, Lord! I'd forgot them," Strawn groaned. "Where are they?"

"Here they are," Dundee told him, throwing under the closet door. "She showed them to me last night."

He stopped to the floor of the closet, gathering up three medicine bottles filled with liquid food—coffee, milk and soup.

"I'll get them analyzed," Strawn promised wearily, as he stowed the corked bottles in his coat pocket. "By the way, I wish you'd arrange to get hold of Dowd's and Magnus's laundry to find time to visit you in the morning might be a good chance, but Mrs. Rhodes to save, unwashed and untouched a glass or a knife or an egg cup that each of those two uses at breakfast. They both claim they never met Mrs. Hogarth, and if Carroway has a sample of either of them in the hatch he found in this room tonight we'll at least know he was lying."

"Well, boy, good night! Watch your chance to sneak to your room unobserved. See you in the morning about 11, unless you get on a hot trail before then."

"Here?" Dundee asked.

"Sure, I'll have to go through all the junk in this room, then take it down to headquarters for safe keeping. I'm leaving Boyle on guard in the room tonight, and a couple of men on the grounds."

"By the way, chief," Dundee demanded, "Do you think we're going to be able to keep it dark that it was I—the suspiciously interested new boarder—who discovered the murder?"

"We shan't try," chuckled Strawn. "Let the other boarders know all about it. You can tell them that the old lady asked you to buy her some thing at the drug store while you were out, after visiting her, and that you came to her room to give it to her and found her dead. They'll either believe you, or if they don't, so much the better, if your theory that the murderer is an inmate of this house is correct. He—or she—will think you're an easy suspect, and not easy. Of course, the morning papers will play up Sevier in a big way, but an alternate suspect will help a lot to put the murderer off his guard—provided, always, that Sevier isn't our man. Which I think he is."

It was nearly 4 o'clock when Dundee

She played the piano, and won fame—played the market, and lost a fortune. Internationally noted for her beauty, wealth and musical talent, 19-year-old Margaret Shotwell, above, has admitted losing nearly $1,000,000—almost her entire fortune—in the recent Wall street stock crash. ## Hens - Is Hens

SELLING AN EGG that has just arrived via the "hen-pullmans" of the Canadian National Railways

PIGS, as the world by this time knows, is pigs.

Hens, it might be added, is hens. And therefore, eggs is eggs.

When Canadian hens travel from Prince Edward Island or New Brunswick to New England by the Canadian National Railways, they travel in "hen pullmans" that have been equipped especially for them. And it's a poor fowl that doesn't pay for her passage by laying the odd egg.

During September, large quantities of poultry are shipped from the Canadian Maritime provinces to the Boston market. The Canadian National system supplies the pullmans, divided neatly into compartments, caged with wire, equipped with tanks that hold 500 gallons of water, with a stove and with a bunk for the attendant. Each car has an attendant who feeds his charges twice a day with wet mash, sees that the tanks are filled, and collects the eggs.

Perhaps there are as many as 3,000 hens in a car. Between Prince Edward Island and Boston, 3,000 hens eat two tons of feed and drink 2,000 gallons of water. The hens gain a total of 700 pounds and they lay about 240 dozen eggs. The attendant gathers these and sells them.

Hens is hens and eggs is eggs and have their nationality, curious as it may seem. An egg laid in Canada is a Canadian egg and liable to duty if it crosses the border, so the Canadian eggs are collected and sold before the pullman reaches the United States. The American eggs are sold at the end of the trip.

Gas Company Head Is Monoxide Gas Victim

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Robert M. Searle, president of the Rochester Gas and Electric Corporation, was found dead from asphyxiation in his home here today.

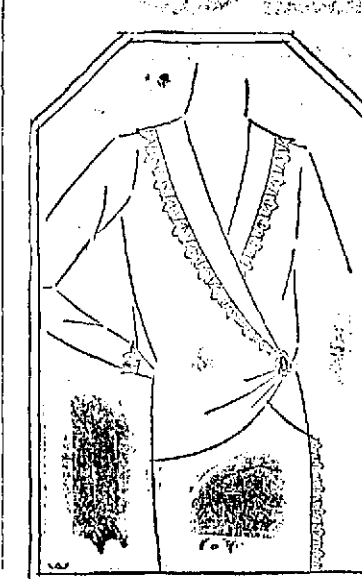

Herman Russell, vice president of the company who found the body said it was clearly a case of suicide.

A. H. COX

A. H. Cox, a resident of this city for nearly two years, died at a local hospital this morning following an operation for appendicitis two weeks ago. The body will be shipped to Wild Cherry, Fulton county, Ark., it is understood, though final arrangements will not be made until the arrival of relatives. Mr. Cox is survived by his widow, his father, three brothers and three sisters.

Reports from Little Rock are to the effect that W. W. Duckett, who yesterday was operated on at St. Vincent's hospital, is coming out of the kinks in a hurry and expects to be back home within the next few days. He is reported this morning as being in excellent condition.

Never Wholly Clear

WHEN civilized man becomes too proud of his monumental churches, his far-flung schools and his complex industries, it is a good thing to remember that despite all his obvious knowledge he falls down woefully when asked to explain the simplest thing.

An excellent example, right here in Arkansas is the trial of the Rev. Hay Watson Smith at Little Rock, where the Arkansas Presbytery is questioning him this week on a suspicion of heresy. In a misguided moment Dr. Smith said something about evolution. His church thinks possibly Dr. Smith hasn't a clear view of the faith, to be talking so freely on a subject like the Darwinian theory.

And yet we suspect the Rev. Mr. Smith sees life a good deal clearer than many of his critics. Personally we would be very uncomfortable in the company of a minister who did not dare to discuss evolution or any of the other scientific theories that are now generally accepted. Religion is one thing, and science another. Someone has said that science brings us facts, but religion brings us peace. Certainly the scientist who attempted to stretch the Darwinian theory to cover the story of Genesis would be discredited, just as belligerent churchmen who oppose all science are sooner or later discredited.

The desire for learning, and the love of spiritual peace, are two necessary factors in human life. Why should we be perpetually fighting one or the other?

Man's inherent inability to keep to the middle of the road is reflected in a thousand prejudices and an overflowing fund of misinformation. Those of you who saw the play "The Hometowners" remember what amusing comedy George M. Cohan discovered in the prejudice of the country against the city. That made us think of something. Almost every country boy is determined sometime or other to move to the city. And practically every city man, reaching the prime of life, dreams of a place in the country. Isn't that a fact? And doesn't it prove that it takes a lot of religion, science and human clarity to make an all-round man, who at best never sees life wholly clear?

Sane View of "Freedom of the Press"

AN interesting example of how a country newspaper might voluntarily forego one of its traditional rights in order to better serve the interests of its community is shown in the following news dispatch from Lubbock, Texas:

The Morning Avalanche and the Daily Journal, only newspapers in Lubbock county and principal papers in this part of Texas, have announced that they would not fight a court order issued by Judge Clark M. Mullican restraining them from publishing testimony in the habeas corpus hearing of Clay Hester, indicted here for the murder of his wife.

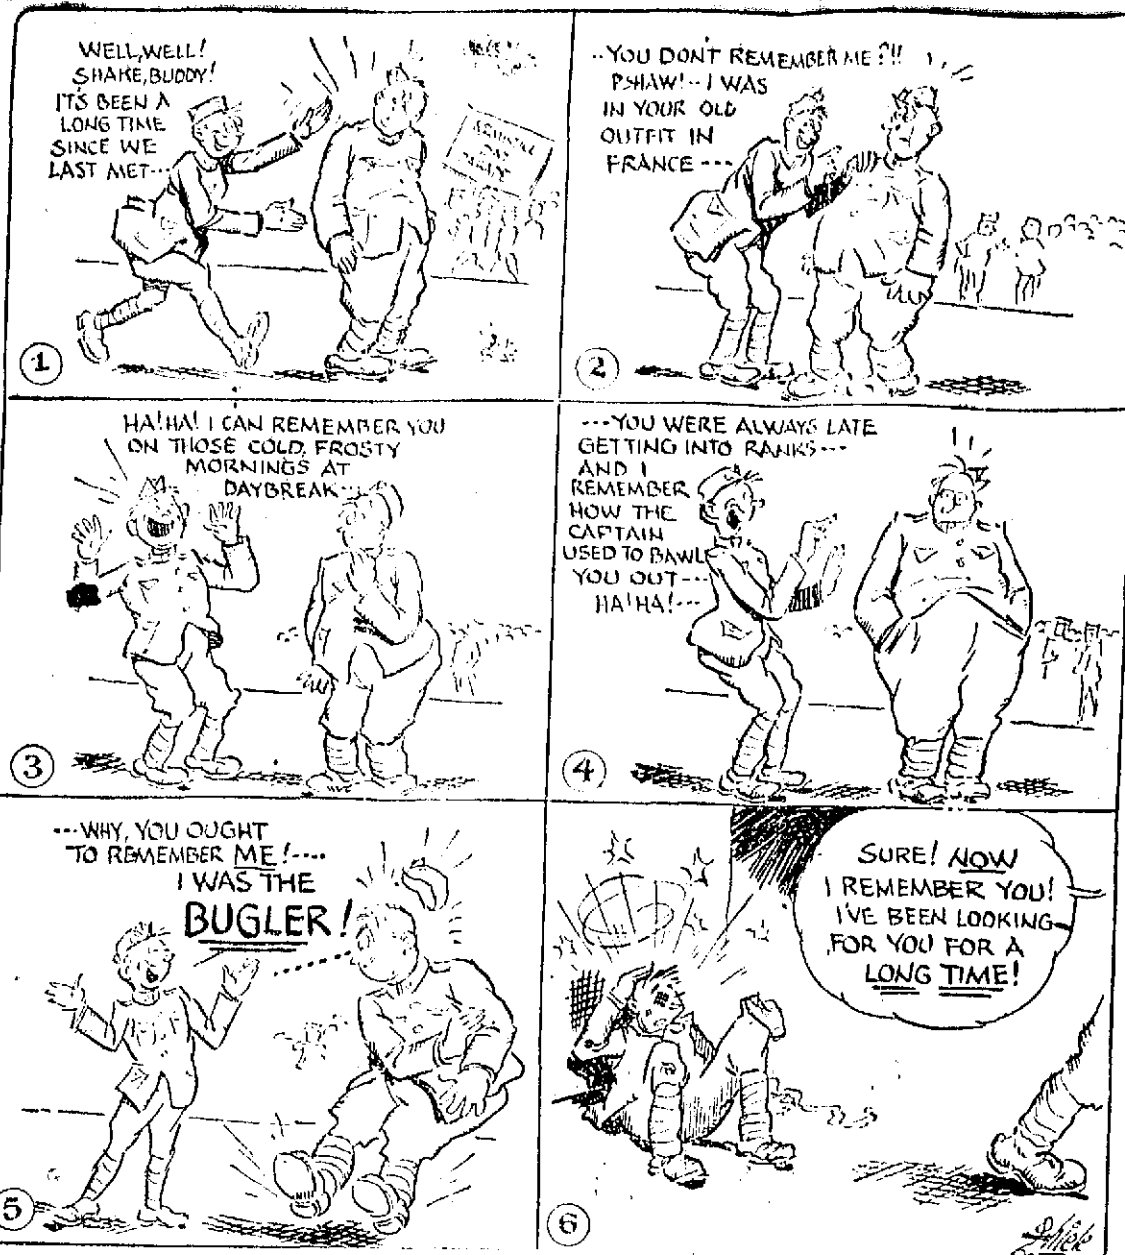

Charles A. Guy, editor of both papers, said he did not regard the judge's action as an infringement on the liberty of the press, but simply, as the judge claimed, an effort to save the county money. Judge Mullican said in the order that if the testimony were published it would be hard to get a jury for the trial, besides which the defendant probably could get a change of venue on the ground of prejudice and the county would have to spend thousands of dollars on mileage.

The writ was refused. When the case is tried the papers will print the proceedings.

It would have been easy for this Texas editor to have raised the cry that "the freedom of the press is being imperiled in this county," fought the court order and perhaps won an empty victory which would have added nothing to the prestige of his newspapers but which would have added to the burden of the taxpayers. That he did not is a tribute both to his sane attitude toward "the freedom of the press" and his intelligent conception of what that phrase really means, and to his genuine concern for the welfare of his community.

His action is to be commended to others, especially those editors of the metropolitan newspapers who are most jealous of press liberties, (when it best serves their interests to be) who take a "public be damned" attitude when it is a question of serving the public good by refusing to exploit sensation or selling more papers by being the first to exploit it, and who cloak their motives under an assumed righteousness in "maintaining inviolate the freedom of the press."—Publishers' Auxiliary

Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgot?

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—President Hoover has done many things to excite praise in the actual eight months he has spent in the White House. On the other hand, he has also run into more troubles and grief than Mr. Coolidge did in all that time. If one omits the inherited oil scandals.

Some of these troubles Hoover has brought upon himself, some have been deliberately created for him, and others have just happened. But hardly any of them were anticipated when Hoover took office.

There are few historical parallels for the collapse of tariff legislation in Congress. Administration forces in the Senate once confident of a working majority, are demoralized.

They're Giving Up

Road of Pennsylvania, oldest of the administration leaders, has publicly admitted that the tariff bill is dead. Floor Leaders Jim Watson of Indiana, who has been getting more and more nervous and ineffectual, has departed for Florida on the reported advice of physicians. Bingham of Connecticut, one of the Finance Committee's most dependable regulars, faces a resolution of censure. Republican Progressives and Democrats rule the roost.

Hoover wanted tariff legislation but declined to say what he wanted. He lost his chance to control the situation when he remained silent and allowed the House Ways and Means Committee to make a general tariff revision instead of the limited revision especially designed to aid agriculture for which he had originally called. Left to itself the committee decided that the sky would be the limit.

The Senate Finance Committee, also without any apparent White House guidance, ratified its work. And now the Senate coalition is making such hash of their work that no one sees quite how any bill can ever come out of conference or how Hoover can sign it if one does.

Hoover's only attempts to intervene resulted in signal defeats at the hands of the Senate coalition. He demanded retention and extension of the flexible Prerogatives which enable him to raise or lower duties and the Senate voted to take it away from him altogether. He was emphatically on record against the debenture plan and the coalition voted it right into the tariff bill.

Hoover knew when the Senate attached the debenture to the farm bill last spring that it would be knocked out in conference. But now he is reasonable sure that the conference can't save the flexible provision and knock out the debenture at the same time. The Senate would never swallow all that. Meanwhile the legislative bark goes nowhere.

No one can blame Hoover for the stock market crash. Only Democratic presidents got blamed for things like that. But it's a blow to the Hoover prestige, nevertheless, calculated to worry the president severely. The market went up on the strength of his election and then it came down in an avalanche.

My Favorite Bible Passage

Today's Choice by JUDGE FRANKLIN CHASE HOYT

Presiding Justice of the Children's Court of New York City

Judge Hoyt

I delivered the poor that cried, and the fatherless, and him that had none to help them. The cause which I knew not I searched out.—Job 29:12, 16.

COMMENT

"This passage has proved of great help to me in my work among neglected and delinquent children."

(Compiled by the Bible Guild)

Friday—Franklin D. Roosevelt, governor of New York.

C. L. Cade, of the Bodewy Lumber Co., of Stamps, was in the city yesterday.

A. F. Drake, formerly a citizen of Hope, but who now resides in Texas, was in the city on business yesterday.

Barney Hamm of Stamps was in the city yesterday, the guest of George Hinton, Jr., with whom he spent the past three years in the First Division of the U. S. Army.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Williams, whose home is in South America, are visiting relatives in Hope, guests at the home of his aunt, Mrs. J. T. Hicks.

Mrs. Frank E. Morris, nee Miss Ethel McElroy, writes us to send the Star to her at 518 West 111th New York City, her home. Her husband is traveling for a prominent New York wholesale house.

The Karolyis finally have been admitted to this country. That was the reason, of course, for the recent market crash.

It begins to appear that some of the protective tariff people failed to protect themselves.

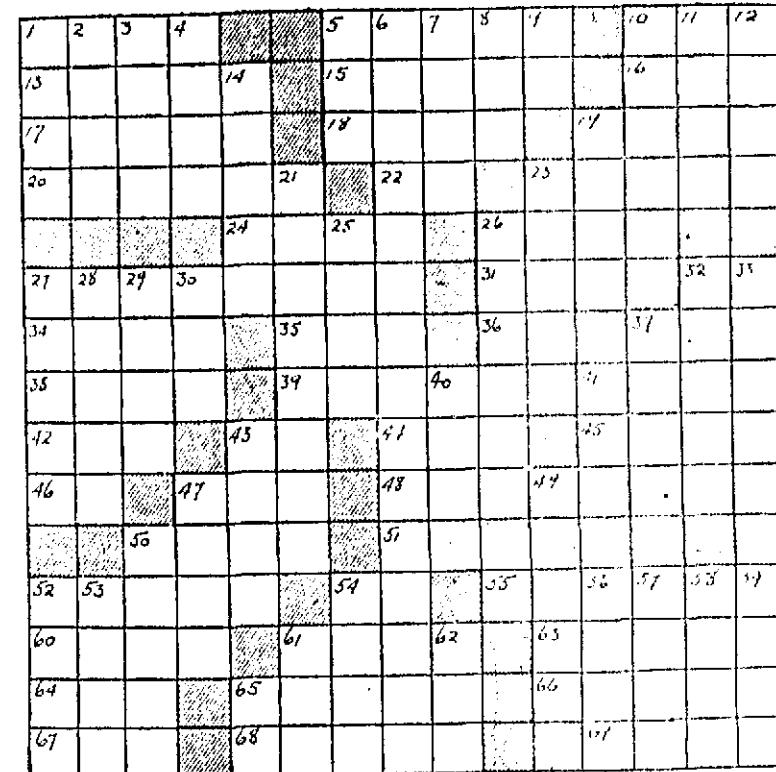

The New York judge who sentenced a man to jail because he was "lazy" probably merely sent him up for a stretch.

Brookhart Describes "Wet Party"

He didn't taste it, so Senator Smith W. Brookhart couldn't testify whether it was wine, gin, whiskey or some other kind of liquor that flowed at a "Wall Street party" given for senators in a Washington hotel. But the Iowa legislator "recognized the aroma from old saloon days," and here you see him, left, telling District Attorney Leo Rover about it. Later Senator Brookhart testified before a District of Columbia grand jury.

ness of its sheets. Mamliton's newest detective did not succumb to sleep. In the light of the electric lamp suspended over the head of his bed he began at the first entry of Mrs. Hogarth's diary and read through it rapidly pausing now and then, however, to copy an entry upon his cheap little tablet which held his notes on the stories the inmates of the Rhodes House had told to Lieutenant Strawn.

And as he read, Daisy Shepherd's amazing statement was never out of his mind—"I had a pretty strong hunch that Mrs. Hogarth didn't have any money to leave to anybody." Before he had finished half of the six month's record of the murdered woman's life, Dennis Dundee had reached the same conclusion. Not that there was an actual sentence of paragraph upon which he could put his finger and say "There!" She's given herself away! But there were frequent cryptic references to her "miser's hoard" and to her several wills, and after each reference Dundee fancied he could hear a ghostly chuckle. Was it not entirely possible that the old lady had perpetrated a gigantic hoax on her fellow boarders?

Two good reasons suggested themselves immediately: First, to insure companionship and attentions from her temporary "favorites," to alleviate the loneliness of her confinement to her room; second, to gratify her passion for meddling dramatically in the lives of others. Undoubtedly, Mrs. Emma Hogarth had watched with wicked glee her own machinations and the excitement caused by her "last will and testament" changes.

Invariably there was a first-of-the-month reference to "Letter from S. today," followed by veiled, cryptic comments on the news in "S's" letters. It was when Dundee reached the en-

An Automaton Pilots Their Plane

try of May 1 that his suspicions were startlingly confirmed:

"Letter from S. today. Also the usual. Says she has paid another quarterly premium on her insurance policy. Wish she wouldn't keep it up. I'm sure to die before she does and never need it. S. also writes that she saw in home town paper that our good friend J. W. is dead. Makes me sadder than I have felt for five years. I'll never forget how good he was to us in our hour of trouble, the last time we ever saw him. I often wonder how S. and I would ever have gotten away that day if J. W. hadn't helped us to pack. S. says the paper gave him a fine obituary. He had been a cashier of the bank. I'm glad he did so well."

His finger shaking with excitement, Dundee hastily turned the pages to the entry for June 1. He caught his breath sharply as he read: "Letter from S. today. 'The poor girl is lonely and depressed. Wish she could marry again and be happy, but suppose that is impossible. Says she has had no word or news of any kind from D. all these years. Says she doesn't know whether he is dead or alive. I hope for her sake and his that he is dead, but we may never know it if he is. I've lived for five years in the dread that D. would turn up.'"

Bonnie Dundee drained the diary, clasped his hands behind his head and closed his eyes, the better to think clearly. "Turn up—turn up—'A bad penny always turns up.' What dreadful secret had old Mrs. Hogarth kept for five years? Who was S.? Certainly someone of whom the old woman was very fond. But why not leave her 'miser's hoard' to S., instead of to some temporary favorite in the boarding-house? If there was a hoard to leave, and who was D., of whom old Mrs. Hogarth lived in dread? Obviously he was the husband of S. whom she had not seen for five years, the reason why S. could not marry again. A deserting husband. But why had the old lady lived in dread of S.'s husband's turning up?"

"At all events, S. must be notified and questioned," Dundee told himself.

If she has written to Mrs. Hogarth once a month all these years, surely Mrs. Rhodes can tell me who she is. I'm afraid you're in for a terrible shock, my dear!"

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE assures the freedom of the press—Public opinion has been freed from the tyranny which denied it the right to pass judgment on public questions.

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobacco—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

86,000 Miles of Service

Delano, Calif., July 29, 1929

Montgomery Ward & Co.

On July 10, 1923, I purchased from your Portland, Oregon, house, a Riverside Card Tire. This tire I have driven over all kinds of roads, mountains, desert, and a great deal of this mileage was over very rough roads. It has given me 86,000 miles on the rear wheel of my Dodge Roadster with just one puncture and is still good for many miles more; but was taken off on account of tube which was completely rotted out.

Yours very truly,
J. H. RUSTON

RIVERSIDE users frequently write us of the phenomenal mileage records produced by these wonderful tires... records of 10,000-20,000-30,000 miles and even more. Recently we received the unsolicited letter reproduced here, and the customer was good enough to send us the tire that produced this outstanding mileage record.

This message is addressed primarily to the "Daring Thomas" motorist who thinks that tire performance is to be judged entirely by price. This of course is a mistaken impression. The reason for the low price of RIVERSIDE First-Quality Tires lies completely in the way they are sold—not the way they are made. These tires cost as much to build as any other tire, but they cost less to sell.

Selling millions of tires every year to motorists at the lowest selling cost ever known, it is not possible for your saving of $2 to $13 on every RIVERSIDE you buy!

They're Both Right—Hooray!

Now and then you come across a dispute in which both sides have strong arguments. Such seems to be the case in the current Army-Navy quarrel. The average innocent bystander hardly knows which side to tip to and shut with.

The Army takes the position that nobody else is kicking against its eligibility rule, so why should the Military Academy allow the Naval Academy to tell it where to get off?

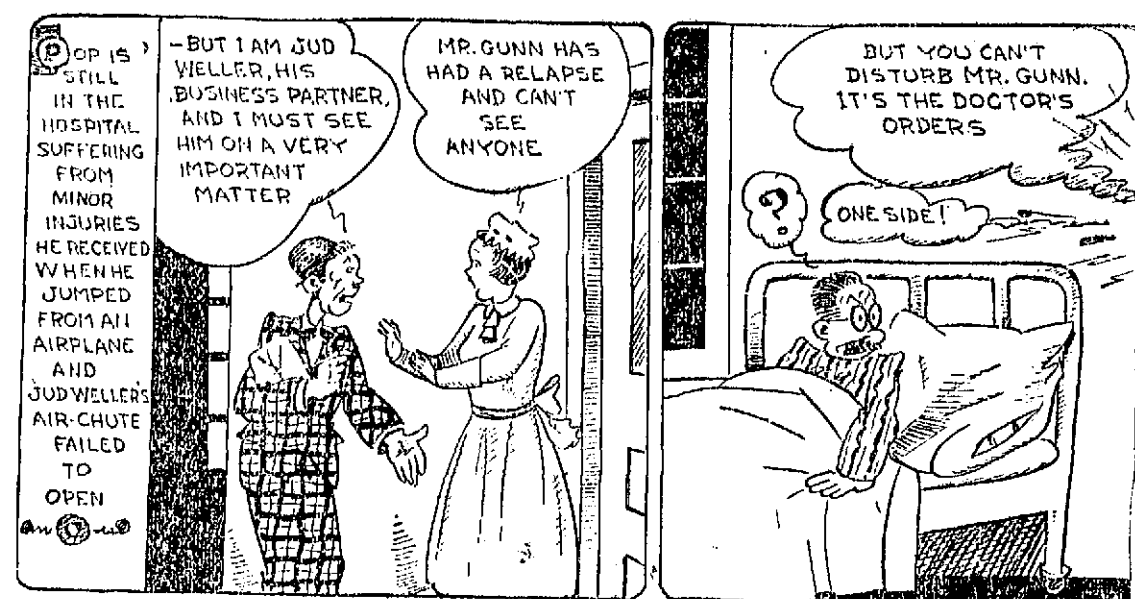

Athletics for all is the West Point standard.

The Navy seems to take the stand that it does not care for pitched battles with some very experienced players, some of whom have played at other colleges and universities for several years before matriculating at West Point. The Navy offered compromises, which the spokesman for the Army deemed attempts for parity rather than eligibility.

The Army's Handicap

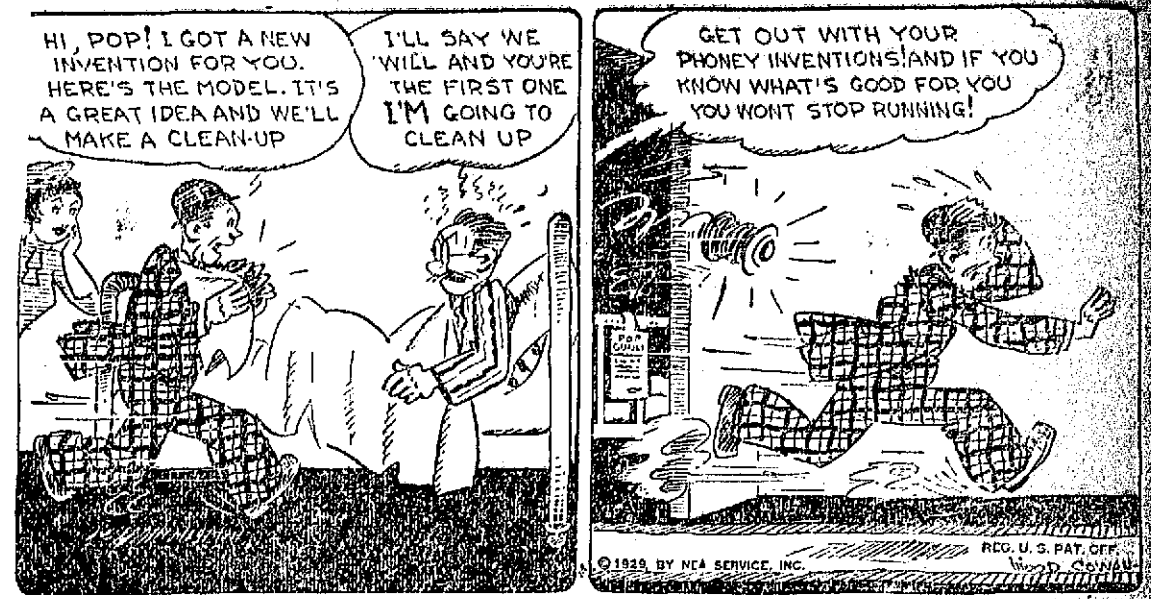

Army is the smallest school in point of student numbers, having about 1200 to the Navy's 2000. The Army takes the position that with the three-year rule it has now in force, about 300 players are excluded from the football competition. To adopt the same eligibility rule as the Navy would result in 44 per cent more of the Army students becoming ineligible, since that is the

Newest Mailbox Rain Proof

Col. Joseph C. Bonner has invented a community mailbox to replace the unsightly crossroads clusters of individual receptacles, as is upper left. The new box has 15 individual receptacles and a compartment for parcel post. The empty pigeonhole is for outgoing mail.

By CHESTER L. SHAW
NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The latest contribution to farm relief is an oversize mailbox.

It won't relieve the farmer from trotting down to the crossroads to get the letters and papers, but it will save on his liability when he finds his parcel post package is dry instead of out in 30 rain with the blue from overalls meringing into the white ruffian dress ordered by the wife.

Col. Joseph C. Bonner, inventor and manufacturer of Toledo, had the inspiration last summer when, on a tour, he noticed clusters of unsightly individualized mailboxes at crossroads here and there, with parcels too large for them on the ground.

Whereupon Colonel Bonner invented his box and went to Washington to see the postmaster general, Walter F. Brown, whom he had known all his life.

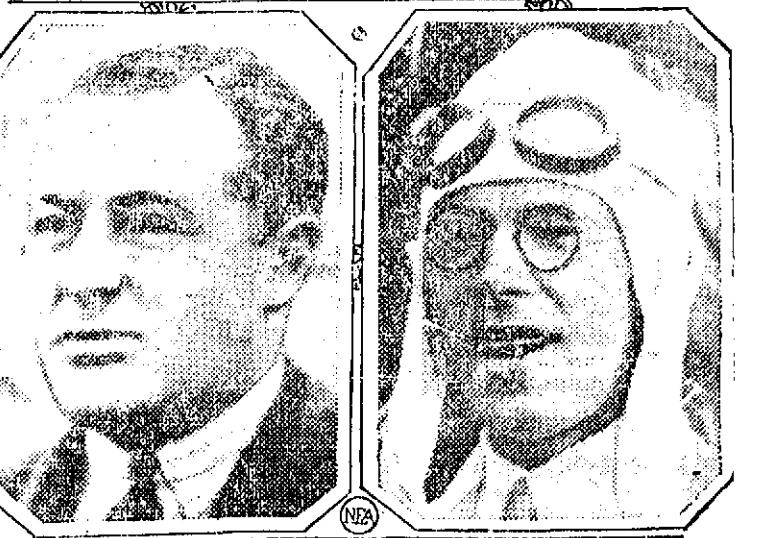

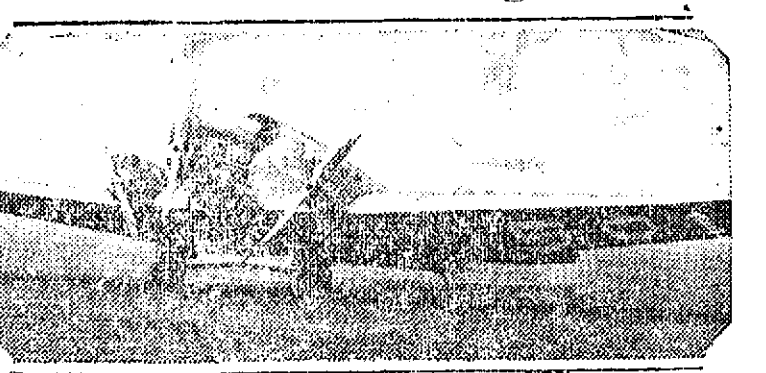

The postoffice department authorized trial of the new box at Bolles Harbor, Mich., where lives Mrs. William Bolles, daughter of Colonel Bonner. The device was scheduled to be put into use November 7, and the postmaster at Monroe, Mich., was instructed to report on the experiment.

The new box is designed for the crossroads use of 15 persons or families. It looks like an elongated phonograph cabinet. On the right side are 15 pigeon holes for mail, and each has a center has his private key.

On the left side is a compartment for parcels. It will take articles up to 90 inches long, anything from a pitchfork handle to a singletree.

Colonel Bonner believes his mailbox, if adopted over the country by the government, would reduce the postal deficit by the rental from those using it. And it would, he says, add immeasurably to the beauty of the countryside.

Saved in Crash of Big Plane

A German prince and a distinguished British naval officer alone survived the crash of a giant Berlin-to-London passenger plane in which six persons were killed near Marden Park, England. Prince Eugene von der Schaumburg Lippe, lower right, a relative of the former kaiser, and second pilot of the plane, was seriously burned, however, and Lieut. Commander R. G. Glen-Kidston, retired, lower left, received severe cuts and bruises. The Lufthansa tri-motored plane, like the one pictured above, crashed after striking a tree-top in a dense fog.

number of students who enter West Point after they have attended colleges and universities.

Not questioning the stand taken by the Army, it does seem as if the military authorities could bend back a bit without suffering great indignity. Why not give the Navy's suggestion a trial? There are years and years ahead of both schools in which help changes can be made if the three-year rule is found unsatisfactory.

Bravely Spoken

Major General W. R. Smith, spokesman for the Army, told Rear Admiral Robinson conducting negotiations for the Navy, that the admiral was asking "not eligibility, but parity." But why should not the Army grant the dear old Navy parity, if that is all the Midler wants? Surely the Military Academy does not hold the Naval Academy in any light that might be construed as fear!

General Smith further says: "I am sure if the average army man were to express his thoughts he would say, 'bring on your 2000 midshipmen, and our 1200 West Point cadets will play them 1 at a time.'"

The general has spoken bravely but he might have said even more courageous words. He might have said, "The Military Academy seeks no advantage over the Navy, and if the Navy says so, the Military Academy will walk on its hands and play the midshipmen."

Aw! Give 'Em a Break!

In one aspect the Army's attitude is not so dreadfully apostolic, even though the school was exonerated by the Carnegie Foundation bulletin. Thus, if Yale, under Army rules, had a three-year military course for university grade, Albion Booth could play for Old Eli for six years. Or he could play for Yale three years and then go to West Point for his remaining three seasons.

If the Army wants to play the Navy on even terms, to be brutally suggestive, why not give the Middles the break?

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

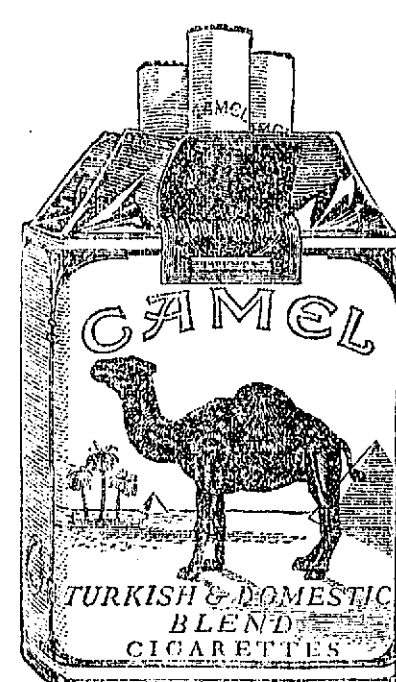

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

When Dawes Visited White House

NEA Washington Bureau

An interesting camera shot of President Hoover and Charles G. Dawes, America's ambassador to Great Britain, taken during General Dawes' recent visit to the White House, is shown above. President Hoover seems to be enjoying the presence of a canine pet at the White House, and Dawes—why that famous upside-down pipe is missing!

Goes to Trial for Rothstein Killing

61 Quorum Courts
Favor Farm Work

More Counties Expected
To Make Appropriations
To Carry On.

LITTLE ROCK, Nov. 14.—A total of 61 Quorum Courts Wednesday had made appropriations to carry on farm extension work for another year. It was announced by officials of the State Extension Bureau of the Arkansas State University here.

Additional counties reporting budgets Wednesday are Columbia, Garland, Washington, Jackson, Phillips, Drew and Cleburne. The Quorum Court of Arkansas county is voting on the project Wednesday, and the court of North Sebastian will decide Thursday what its appropriation will be. It was stated.

There are 11 new counties making appropriations this year, which include Madison, Johnson, Cleburne, Clay, Independence, Polk, Little River and Saline. The following counties appropriated funds for a county agent: Madison, Cleburne, Clay, while Little River and Saline set aside funds for both county agents and home demonstration workers.

Pulaski, Arkansas and Howard counties are expected to line up with the other courts for extension work.

An additional appropriation of $3,000 for a dairy specialist will be made in addition to the regular budget by the Quorum Court in Pulaski county it was said. This will be the first time such action has been made, and will greatly stimulate work in this county. It was pointed out by extension officials.

When the Quorum Court of Arkansas County makes its appropriation, this will give Southeast Arkansas a rating of 100 per cent in its farm extension program for next year. There are 19 counties in this area. It was stated.

The appropriation for county government in Hempstead county has been held up by a deadlock between the County Judge and members of the Court and it is not known what action will be taken there.

JERUSALEM, Nov. 14.—A heavy rifle fire from an unknown source was turned on Safel, northeast of Haifa, at 7:30 this afternoon, and one soldier reported wounded. Local troops replied to the fire and reinforcements were hastened from Ross and Tringah. Armored cars were sent to the scene of the trouble but no raiders were discovered.
